Last evening Miss Gentry was the guest of honor of the Associated Advertising citibs of Texas at their Mexican spread in the Sheldon griti. She entered into the spirit of the evening and again demonstrated herself to be a thorough cosmopolite. She wore upon this occasion a black silk walking suit with red military collar and an eccentric black straw hat with a suggestion of a monoplane to it. The costome was bought at the Popular.

Monday morning Miss Gentry went for a limousine ride in a handsome blue and white car from the Jitney company and later made her shopping calls. She wore for this occasion a rose colored suit and a quaint rose hat of a Vanity Fair pattern from Everybody's and the white fur that has been identified with much of her public appearance. After calling at McMickin's Grocery store and the Western Furniture company she drove to the sity hall to make a call upon mayor Tom Lea. who has just returned from Califernia.

Standing about the railroad station were men and women with great slices of rare meal and cuts of beef in their hands, freshly slaughtered, as if going to a bull fight or a fiesta. Everywhere was a sort of conviviality that scemed in strange contrast to the slowly moving feet of the soldiery and the dragging feet of men, reluctant to die. The sam beat down relentiessly—the dust filled the air—women steed off afar, and then came the formation and the
